Covers these lab items: Polythene film

What it is used for

Polythene sheets provide temporary covering, separation, or protection for materials and work surfaces.

How to handle

- Select a sheet of suitable thickness and size for the intended task.
- Inspect for holes, tears, contamination, and slippery surfaces before use.
- Spread the sheet carefully and secure loose edges to prevent tripping or wind displacement.
- Keep plastic sheets away from flames, hot surfaces, and incompatible chemicals.
- Collect offcuts and dispose of or recycle them according to local requirements.

Storage

- Fold or roll sheets neatly after use if they are reusable.
- Store in a clean, dry area away from heat, sharp objects, and direct sunlight.
