Covers these lab items: Bedside Locker

What it is used for

A bedside locker stores personal belongings and care essentials near a bed in healthcare or accommodation settings.

How to handle

- Inspect the locker, drawers, handles, wheels, and edges for damage or instability.
- Position it so it is accessible without blocking movement, emergency access, or medical equipment.
- Keep personal belongings organised and protect confidential documents or valuables.
- Clean high-touch surfaces regularly and follow infection-control procedures where applicable.
- Do not overload drawers or use the locker as a step or seat.

Storage

- Keep the locker clean, dry, and arranged in its designated position.
- Secure stored items and keep essential access routes clear.
